Inventory of Homeless Units

Seattle / King County

Important Changes – Please Read

This inventory is a point in time count of emergency shelter, transitional housing, and permanent housing units specifically dedicated for homeless people. The inventory differs from previous inventories in a number of ways –

- Emergency shelter capacity is measured in household or family units – shelter capacity is no longer measured as individual beds. For example, a family consisting of a mother and child is considered a household unit. Likewise, a father, mother, and three children are considered a household unit. Previously, the capacity for these families would have been listed as seven, whereas the capacity would be listed in this inventory as two household units. Switching the basis for measurement dramatically changes the yearly comparison of shelter capacity.
- Emergency shelter is separated into fixed (facility-based) capacity and flexible (hotel/motel voucher programs and Tent City 3).
- Many programs that provide shelter for women with children also provide shelter for single women. The capacity of these programs varies on any given night depending on need for shelter, constellation of families, and the array for units in a building. In the past, these programs were only listed in the women with children section. In this report, however, the numbers for single women have been displayed separately to more accurately reflect the inventory in our community.
- Emergency shelter and transitional housing are now displayed separately for north, east, and south county areas.
- The capacity for transitional housing units for families with children changed dramatically from 2000 to 2002, primarily due to how programs use state rental assistance funding. Only those programs receiving THOR/A (Transitional Housing, Operating and Rental Assistance) program funding for rental assistance (not operating costs to support these programs) are included in this inventory.

Permanent Housing for Formerly Homeless People

In the Seattle/King County area, 1,972 units of non-profit owned and/or operated housing were identified that specifically targets homeless people. Another 225 units under development were also identified. Many other non-profit organizations and housing authorities provide permanent housing for formerly homeless people; however, identifying these units was beyond the scope of this report.

PART B: Emergency Shelter Resources

1. Summary

There is an extensive network of emergency shelter facilities in Seattle/King County with a total year round capacity of approximately 1,965-1,972 household units. Additional shelter, with varying capacity, is provided through numerous hotel/motel voucher programs and Tent City 3. During the winter months, October through March, several organizations throughout the region expand shelter capacity.

System-wide shelter referrals are made through:

- The bed bank at the Crisis Clinic that keeps daily information on shelter availability
- Welfare offices that make referrals and placement in emergency services
- Operation Nightwatch and the Women's Referral Center that assist with late night placement into shelters
- Many local police departments, including the Seattle Police Department Community Service Officers, that assist with referrals to shelters or provide vouchers for short term hotel/motel stays, and
- In situations where there is domestic violence, national, state and local hotlines and a strong referral network among local organizations, police departments, and criminal justice system link people with safe shelter.

PART C: Transitional Housing Resources

1. Summary

A total of 1,651-1,653 transitional housing units are routinely available in Seattle/King County to assist formerly homeless people as they regain stability in their lives. Another 211-213 units are in the development stage. Included in this inventory are traditional models of transitional housing where residents benefit from a peer group setting as well as transition-in-place models.

Of the total number of transitional housing units, about 74 percent are located in the city of Seattle and 26 percent are in the balance of the County.

The breakdown of units in use (not those under development) by household type is shown below. Note: some programs provide housing to single women as well as women with children at any given time, family constellation dictates the number of people a program can house – thus a range is given for the capacity of these programs.

Location of Transitional Housing Units, by Type of Population Served

PART D: Permanent Housing for Homeless People

Along with the rest of the region's low and moderate-income residents, formerly homeless people searching for affordable housing find it a very difficult task. Barriers include the short supply of affordable housing, very low vacancy rates and reduced turnover, little or no rental history, prior evictions, criminal records, poor credit references, discrimination, and the need for housing-related support services in order to remain successful in permanent housing.

Public housing. The lion's share of affordable housing for homeless people is housing made available through four local housing authorities - King County Housing Authority, Renton Housing Authority, Muckleshoot Housing Authority and Seattle Housing Authority. For the public housing waiting list, there have been historically a number of preferences, including homelessness, rent burden, sub-standard housing, and persons with disabilities, based on federal regulations. However, the federal government has recently changed its preference policies, allowing local housing authorities to examine their policies and make decisions suited to local conditions. Admission policies are also being re-examined as local housing authorities enter into Moving to Work contracts with the federal government (HUD). Seattle Housing Authority is already a Moving to Work agency and King County Housing Authority reports that it will soon be entering into a contract. At this time, Seattle Housing Authority continues to prioritize homeless people for its housing programs.

Shelter Plus Care (SPC) rental assistance specifically for homeless people is another major resource. The King County Shelter Plus Care program, is a federally funded grant program that provides long-term housing subsidies for homeless people with chronic disabilities living with mental illness, HIV/AIDS, and/or chemical addiction. King County has received six SPC awards and has the ability to house about 539 households at this time.

Non-profit-owned/operated. We identified 1,972 units of non-profit owned and/or operated housing that specifically targets homeless people and another 225 currently under development. Many of these units, including Shelter Plus Care, are subsidized with McKinney Homeless Assistance funding. The units listed below are the major housing providers only. Many other non-profits also have units that they may target for homeless people. Identifying all such units was beyond the scope of this report.
